Allied Planes Attack Rome For 1st Time

ately by large formations of Stukas and Mitchells, escorted by Lightning, which bombed the Ciampino airfield.

The Fortress of the Northwest African air force was unscathed to send the first bomb crashing on Rome, headquarters of the Fascist party and prime military target.

Rome was the last of the big railway and communications centres of Italy to be bombed. The ready tons of explosives had been spilled on Milan, Bologna, Naples and Foggia. Rome, however, the municipality to date because of its religious background, had been used by the Axis in movement of troops and supplies for a long period.

(A British United Press dispatch from Bern, Switzerland, said the important rail junction at Portofino, 18 miles southeast of Rome's central station, was heavily bombed. It was said that this severely damaged Axis north-south transport in Italy.)

PRINCIPAL TARGETS

It was understood in London that the principal targets of the raid were the railway marshalling yards east, north and west of Rome, the Ciampino airport, the main headquarters of the air force, and other airbases about eight and a half miles southeast of the city.

(The bombing of Rome was announced by a special broadcast from the lead plane, which flashed the news to headquarters just a few minutes after the first bomb hit the target. The news was given immediately to the press.)

The first was one of the longest undertaken by Allied medium bombers in this theatre of war, a round trip of more than 700 miles.

DOWN IN TRANSPORTS

The North African air forces attacked other important targets by attacking down 15 Junkers transport planes, including the German transport plane, the Junkers Ju 52, and a small island about Sicily.

Lockheed P-38 Lightnings spotted the transports Sunday and the ensuing fight left the transports in flames and on fire.

The use of aerial transport was taken at a time that Axis is short on transport and trying urgently to rush vital supplies to Sicily.

American medium bombers carried out a highly successful raid on Catania in eastern Sicily, Sunday night, dropping more than 85 tons of bombs. Bombs of the kind that preceded them, dropping factories and incendiaries.

DROP LEAFLETS FIRST

The bombing of Rome began at 21:30 a.m.

Leaflets were dropped over Rome prior to the bombing, according to the Italian people that Rome had become a military centre, especially in view of all the German troops being relayed through Rome.

The railway marshalling yards were given special attention.

The crews were given the most thorough briefing and were well-informed and they were instructed in detail regarding the location of various targets, the terrain and other cultural monuments.

The leaflets pointed out that the attack was being made in the daytime at greater risk to Allied planes so that there would be no chance to hit any but military objectives.

FIRES KNOW CITY

Most of the fires who made the raid were familiar with Rome as Catania and were given the most thorough briefing and were well-informed and they were instructed in detail regarding the location of various targets, the terrain and other cultural monuments.

Coming out of Italy just a little more than a year ago, the Italian people followed the months of internment. I am sure that the observation that Rome then had become a military centre. Coming from Catania, where I saw the first German troops and parts of Italian troops, I saw that the German troops were being transported on the railway line going through Rome.

Mussolini was conferring constantly in Venice palace with German war leaders and many of the Italian planes of the Germans were made right in Rome.

British and American fighters passed over Rome repeatedly during the raid, coming in and out of other spots touched.

Mussolini himself almost exclusively on the balcony of the Palazzo Venezia, where he was seen to protest against air raids. The shutters in Rome when I passed through there a year ago, were mostly inadequate. Bomb shells were virtually unknown.

DOWN IN TRANSPORT

The North African air forces scored another triumph Saturday night, shooting down 15 Junkers transport planes between Sicily and Tunisia.

Small, single-engine biplanes, which were used by the Axis to transport troops and supplies, were shot down.

Lockheed P-38 Lightning fighters, which were used by the Allies, were reported to have shot down the transport planes.

The use of aerial transport was taken as a boost that the Axis was short on transport and trying urgently to rush vital supplies to Sicily.

Most of the time was made the raid was familiar with Rome as targets and were selected because of their knowledge of the city.

Coming out of Italy just a little more than a year ago, the Canadian party followed five months of internment. I know from my experience that Rome has become a military zone.

Rome Bombed

Allied airmen bombed Rome for the first time Sunday night, under instructions of course to avoid doing damage to religious and cultural structures. This is notice to Mussolini and his gang that they cannot continue to use Rome as a centre of war activity and still claim immunity for it. If they want the city spared they can secure this by ceasing to use it for military purposes and proceeding to evacuate the city. As they have not done this, the responsibility rests upon them for this first strafing, as responsibility will also lie with them for future attacks, unless they adopt the recognized method of immunizing a community from attack. The railway yards and terminals were the particular objectives of this initial bombing. It is as a key point of transportation, rather than a munitions centre, Rome is being bombed. It is a key point to the Axis and therefore a legitimate target for Allied bombs. While it continues to be so used, group forces are only warranted in attacking it, but bound to do so. The lives of Canadian and other Allied soldiers are endangered by the smooth operation of the Italian railway systems as by the production of munitions which these move to the fighting fronts. Rome must be demoralized by Mussolini or destroyed by the Allies.

Keeping Tojo Busy

World attention may be centred on the Mediterranean and the Kursk-Belgorod campaign of the eastern front, but the Japanese are keeping Tojo busy. General MacArthur and his men are tending strictly to the business they have in hand. While the airmen pound Tojo's bases daily, group forces are being used in Salamaua in New Guinea and Mt. Ting in the Solomons.

These represent the jaws of the pincers which the Allies are using to crush Tojo, thereby crush the Japanese garrisons in the string of islands which fringe Australia. A second naval battle in Gulf, which the enemy again lost heavily, indicates that the plan is going well as it is on land.

Prime Minister Curtin said not long ago that Australia no longer need fear invasion because of the success of the campaign to meet and destroy any expeditionary attempt the Japanese might make. Apparently these expeditions are being employed in defending by attack, and with success.

Tokyo, whatever it might like to do, has had things to do. The Japanese are launching an attack on Russia in the Caucasus. With their garrison marooned on Kiaka and the battle in the South Pacific going against them, Tojo and his pals have no trouble finding reasons to show Hitler and Mussolini why they can't ease the pressure by invading Siberia.

Give Them Some Wheat

It was noted in the despatches that when the Allies started their advance from the landing places in Sicily, transports immediately began to unload food supplies for the civilian population. It was sound strategy, for a skin-of-fur food goes a long way to convince a half-starved man that the intentions of the Allies are benevolent.

Wherever in occupied Europe the Allied troops penetrate, the distribution of food to the hungry and the sick is most follow. Upon that will depend in great measure the reception given to the liberators and the amount of help they get from the people they need to liberate. The contrast between, robbed by the Axis and fed by the Allies will be a more powerful argument with them than any amount of propaganda.

It is to be hoped that Canadian wheat will bulk largely in the supplies thus given to the victims of Hitler's new order of starvation. What is the kind of food the Allied countries can best spare. It is a kind which Europeans have been used, and is high in nutritive value.

And a few million bushels of Canadian wheat distributed over that continent should help in future years to gain markets for our product, and for us, normally have for export in the largest quantities. When benevolence and business can be mixed together it would be folly to neglect the chance.

Going West This Time

The Russians have started their first summer offensive. Berlin said it, and was made in the Ore. It was a report of that enemy-led city as the apparent first objective.

It is at the north end of the 160-mile sector against which a half million Russian troops have been hammering vainly for two weeks. Berlin admits that the counter-attacks penetrated the Axis defences at an early stage, and Moscow supplemented this with claims that the Red army is moving forward from the gap and gaining ground steadily.

Orel covers the enemy base at Bryansk a hundred miles farther west, which is referred to as the hinge linking the northern and southern halves of the German front. If the drive could be pushed that far and Bryansk recovered, the Nazi centre would be pierced and the wings separated. The Berlin report adds that Marshal Timoshenko is directing the attack, which cannot give much comfort in that, which is itself reason to believe something more than a limited operation is in progress. Timoshenko is not a puller of punches nor a leader of slaves. He has before, which is altogether probable.

Only in winter have the Russians hitherto taken the offensive. In the two previous summer campaigns they followed the traditional tactics of a fighting retreat. If they have now launched a full-scale advance instead, this can only mean that they have equipped in a new way. They have before, which is altogether probable.

It was announced officially in London that Canada is now building up a completely the same tonnage of merchant ships as Britain, in addition to naval craft. That great new-made industry should not put out war peace reactors. The shipyards, the tools and the skill will remain. They should be used to build carriers of commerce as they are now used to build carriers of war supplies.

It is gratifying to know that Fighting French forces are also in Sicily. They are there, in a very intimate manner with these people. The tranquility of future generations depends upon our ability to get inside their minds. We will have to adapt them to fit them somewhere into the new world. In some way or another, we will have to adapt them to fit them somewhere into the new world. In some way or another, we will have to adapt them to fit them somewhere into the new world.

The score of Axis prisoners taken in Sicily at the end of seven days stood at 20,000. Detailed reports bear out the impression that the Germans are in a real fight only where they are grouped with German troops. At a good many points they have been rather more than willing to surrender on two conditions: following a general and a whole retinue of staff officers into retirement from the hardships and dangers of military life.

Householders in Ontario and Quebec will have to take 25 per cent of their orders in minimum order. They will get only half the anthracite they got last year. If they agree they will only get 75 per cent of the coal they were used to. Either way they are faced with a choice. Either way they are faced with a choice. Either way they are faced with a choice. Either way they are faced with a choice.

Set Up Government

General Alexander Issues Eight-Point Proclamation To the People of Sicily

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 19.—(AP)—Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, in his first proclamation to the people of Sicily as Allied military governor of that island, yesterday ordered all Fascist party organizations dissolved.

Retires

At the same time it was announced that Charles Peletti, a former Canadian newspaperman who replaced Herbert Lehmann, is in Sicily in a general executive capacity with the Allied military government of occupied territory.

RESTORE FREEDOM

It declared the purpose of the Allies was to deliver the people from the Fascist regime and restore Italy as a land of free people. It stated eight intentions:

1.—All governmental powers and jurisdiction in occupied territory were vested in military government, and in Allied military government of occupied territory.

2.—Exercise of the power of the crown of Italy shall be suspended during the period of military occupation.

3.—All civilians must obey promptly any orders given by the military government.

4.—Your existing personal and property rights will be fully restored, and your existing laws will remain in force and effect, except as may be necessary for the restoration of freedom.

5.—The Fascist party will be dissolved and all discriminatory decrees and laws will be nullified.

6.—All administrative and judicial offices of provinces and municipalities and all other government offices will be reconstituted.

7.—Further proclamations will be issued as necessary warrants.

8.—So long as you remain peaceful and comply with any orders you will be subject to no greater interference than may be inevitable in view of military exigencies, and may go about your normal activities without fear.

9.—The Italian people are urged to stand by the military government and to stand example to many other peoples.

10.—The Italian people are urged to stand by the military government and to stand example to many other peoples.

11.—The Italian people are urged to stand by the military government and to stand example to many other peoples.

Canucks Find Italian Snipers Worst Menace

WITH THE CANADIANS IN SICILY, July 19.—(Delayed)—(CP)—Italian snipers are one of the worst menaces to the advancing Canadian troops now.

Hundreds of Canadians have had experiences with these snipers and this experience of mine.

The second night ashore, I was sleeping in a slit trench near the beach and set up about midnight to continue a story. A snipers' shot put me back and I wiggled into the sand dunes. Two more shots came near before I got away.

During the rapid advance, the Canadians had no time to mop up completely and these snipers are being mopped up now behind our lines.

Hundreds Visit Naval Exhibit In Eaton Store

Hundreds of people on Monday passed through the turnstiles at the Canadian Naval War Exhibition, which the history of the Royal Canadian Navy in the past is linked with the splendid fleet.

The new powerful and ever expanding Canadian navy is accomplished in this way. The exhibition opened at the T. Eaton Company, Western Life Store Monday morning, and will continue on view throughout the week.

When the doors opened at 9:30 a.m., hundreds of children were on hand to view the exhibits, and found everything in readiness for the first day of the exhibition.

The children's enthusiasm was shared by the more than 500 adults who visited the exhibition during the morning session.

The exhibition is a display of the naval forces of the Royal Canadian Navy, and is a most interesting thing to see.

NEW YORK, July 18.—They're already calling Jesse Flores a "morning glory" pitcher—a flinger who blossoms briefly in the sun and fades and pride has prevented the Mexican moundman from explaining his descent from rookie greatness to mediocrity.

Flores, stocky, right-handed pitcher, of the Philadelphia Athletics, was the "hotter" pitcher in the flinger in May 30, when he had pitched seven victories against one defeat. At that time the heavy screwball, delivered with the rare finger grip, was the "hot" pitch. The Athletics were leading the league in wins, and Flores was moving by the Athletics in the batting down. And the Athletics were moving by the Athletics in the batting down. And the Athletics were moving by the Athletics in the batting down.

ELBOW TROUBLE
When asked Flores after Friday's game with the Yankees, in which Flores pitched on the mound and was nicknamed for a home run by Nick Eiken with two mates aboard in the first inning "Flores was relieved after the second inning of the A's loss to the Yankees, 6-5.

NO FLORES DAY
Connie Mack, ancient manager of the Athletics, said "Flores has developed elbow trouble—his elbow—according to Flores, taken last Monday. We are waiting for the physicians to decide if he should have an operation on the elbow." "Yes—unquestionably," said Mack. "The screwball is not to his arm's benefit."

NO FLORES DAY
Connie Mack said "I'm glad you asked that question. You know I had planned to give Flores something different from his usual American suit of clothes. But a Latin American suit of clothes, I had written me, asking to have Friday named 'Flores Day' at Yankee Stadium. I replied that it was okay."

Dominion Troops, Fighting Fit, Are Ready To Smash At Continental Defences Canadian Army Eager For Assault On Europe As Invasion Day Nears

Reveille sounds new note for Canada's streamlined Army in England as day of invasion nears. 1. Cpl. Al. Southern, Hamilton, may soon rouse comrades to attack.

One day they'll see olive green of German uniforms in their sights. In the meantime these sharpshooters of the Cameron Highlanders, Ottawa, keep eyes alert and hands steady with a tough training routine in England's camps.

News from home on the notice board and welcome it is! Reading clippings are Pte. Pete Hayward, left, of Cobourg, Ont., and Pte. R. F. Fanner, Toronto, Ont.

Getting ready for real thing. Lieut. J. A. Forman, Kingston, Ont., explains manoeuvres to Sgts. F. J. Lindsay, left, Peterborough, D. J. Eastwood, Cornwall.

Ptes. J. A. Bedard, Alexandria, Ont., left, and Bert Dixon, Kingston, Ont., eat their noon-day meal by side of road during their unit's training exercises.

Dog that earns rations and quarters is "Wallace", St. Bernard mascot of Canadian Scottish, carrying bagpipes of "Wee Andy" McGregor, Victoria, B.C.

It looks tough and it is if you haven't been hardened up by daily training. But for Canadian troops overseas it's all part of the day's work at a Battle Training School in England. Below, senior officers and instructors look on.

Two members of Canadian Divisional Artillery in England send and receive on field telephone during recent manoeuvres. Sgt. Major E. G. Dempster, Toronto, with phone, awaits call while Gnr. S. M. Dyer, Guelph, Ont., holds order form.

New Brunswick's country roads were first training ground of Ptes. Leigh Kingston and Robert Heger, now in England, warming up for attack on Europe.

Africa Waits

By AHMED ABDULLAH

MAHMOUD KASSEM

"They took all day. Evening brought a gloomy irreflexence, a twilight of pastel rains, a distant mountain range where blues of every shade gleamed on the clouds. Then the sudden tropical night closed like a shutter. They made camp in a small oasis filled with the soft, forgotten caravans of their frugal meal of uncooked meat and dry figs, stretched themselves out to sleep. And there echoed then the night noises of the desert like the slow, insistent pounding of a far earg and clashing through the night, melodramatically, from all directions, the muffled pulse of the signal drums carrying the group of Africa east, north, south, west.

Rush-rub-rub-rum-dum-rub—the sounds waves spanned streams and forests and jungle.

Rush-rub-rub-rum-rub—the sounds waves spanned streams and forests and jungle.

One of the Bedouins coughed—Ah Rashid stopped him with a whisper.

"We want to listen," he said. "You know the drum talk?" asked Lincoln.

"Yes, yes, Hush!" Rashid pressed his ear against the ground, every nerve of his body quivering with excitement, once in a while giving a low exclamation.

For long minutes the drums talked, then stopped—and Rashid rose and turned to Lincoln.

"Is your name Terk el-Medjahi?" he demanded.

The American was surprised.

"Yes," he replied, "How do you know?"

"From something the drums said," he paused, "Listen—"

"Do you mean," you are a devil, you a man of God, and we honor you. But we are men of the morning?"

"Do you mean women drivers always look like that in the morning?"

"Do you mean women drivers always look like that in the morning?"

"Do you mean women drivers always look like that in the morning?"

"Do you mean women drivers always look like that in the morning?"

the police were searching the town and

"Hush!" Rashid said again.

Once more he pressed his ear against the ground as the drums resumed their talk, now broadcast the desert in a warning.

Beware, O Terk el-Medjahi! Beware! Keep away from oases and villages and caravan trails.

The hollow sounds waivered abruptly into silence.

The American was ironically aware of the notion that here he had cut and run, but he was implicated in his own assassination; amused no less, he thought of Captain Pelletier's predicament.

For the latter would wonder if he should carry on the missions contained in the note, or proceed to, thereby clearing up the mystery. But the man was a stout Norman. In the end—Lincoln felt certain—discipline would win the day. Pelletier would not give him away.

The best way to find adhesions is to examine the patient with the fluoroscope. It is not possible to see adhesions, but they may be located by one trained to look for them who uses the fingers to move the abdominal organs. When the examining doctor finds a spot in the colon which is so fixed or tight that it is unable to move it normally, he knows he has located the adhesion.

As the patient is being examined the colon is clearly visible because of the barium which has been used and it is very easy for the physician to make a close study of it. Intestinal adhesions are frequently found in the lower right hand side and the patient may discover them for himself by using the fingers and trying to reach in and move the parts around. When the adhesions are severe, he finds very little movement because of the colon being so tightly bound by adherent tissue.

I have worked out a technique for breaking down adhesions discoverable by the fluoroscopic examination. The method used with the greatest success consists of a deep manipulation. The bloodless surgeon following this method will be able to separate the organs bound together by the adhesions without opening up the abdominal wall. Considerable skill is necessary in order to bring about the right effect and the treatments must be continued for several weeks or months.

As the adhesions are banished the patient is often amazed to find that chronic constipation and digestive troubles are banished along with them. For example, I have seen it happen many times that the patient who has suffered most of his life from chronic constipation takes these manipulative treatments which break down the adhesions and free the colon and discovers that the colon begins to eliminate regularly. Whereas before the patient has depended upon "taking something" to bring about a movement, he now finds the colon able to cleanse itself in a satisfactory manner without his having to give much attention to the matter.

Once the adhesions have been broken up the patient is ready to undertake the corrective treatment for the enlarged condition which was probably the cause of the adhesions in the first place. These sagging organs may be raised to their normal positions in various ways.

One of the best methods to use is to take special exercises on the Slanting Board, with the feet higher than the head. Such a position will cause the organs to fall into their normal positions and the exercising will develop the necessary muscular strength to hold these organs within their normal positions. Treatments given with the Sine wave are also helpful.

In a mild case of adhesions, the use of the Slanting Board alone will be sufficient to produce beneficial results, provided the exercises are persisted in for a sufficient length of time. Unfortunately, average patient does not discover the adhesions until they are more severe, at which stage manipulative treatment is necessary.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 100 words. Address: McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 131 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

First Food Ship From U.S. Reaches Martinique

PORT-OF-FRANCE, Martinique, July 19. (AP)—Enthusiastic crowds swarmed to the quayside Saturday when the first food ship to reach Martinique in many months docked for unloading of 100,000 pounds of staples and clothing.

The supplies will be distributed through local rationing organizations.

Food shipments to Martinique were suspended last November by the United States government while Admiral Georges Robert, governor of Martinique, clung to Vichy the line with Vichy were snapped this week.
